Much Damage to Houses. Fences and Crops at Places Heard From-Plano, the Towns Worsted by its Fury.

THE PLANO DEPOT DEMOLISHED AND ALL THE LITTLE HOUSES IN TOWN CAPSIZED. Telegram to the Galveston News. | PLANO, October 7.—At about four o'clock is morning, while everyone was wrapt i the arms of morpheus, Plano was visited by a terrific tornado from the northwest, which aroused the entire population, and for about fifteen minutes the air was hideous with the shrieks of women, the roar of the wind and crashing of falling and flying timbers. Fortunately no lives were lost, though several houses were blown from their foundations. The Central depot is almost an entire wreck. Its roof was blown off and heavy mbers were carried several hundred yards The agent and telegraph operator escaped unburt. The new residence of Mr. Cham-berlin was demolished. As it was not ready for occupancy no one was in it. The Christian church, a weightyland well-built house, was moved eight or ten feet from its blocks. All the little houses in town were capsize

Telegraph wires were torn down for a dis-tance of three handred yards north of the depot, but communication was soon restored with St. Louis and Galveston by the prompt arrival of Mr. Chappell, line repairer, from Dallas. Cotton is coming in briskly, at the rate of seventy bales per day. Business FRIGHTFUL DESTRUCTION AT WILLS POINT Telegram to the Dallas Commercial.] WILLS POINT, October 7 .- About twenty five minutes past five o'clock this morning a fearful storm arose. The wind blew a perfect several business and dwelling houses. The livery stable of Messrs. M'Leod & Jackson was completely demolished. Hacks and buggies were crushed by the falling timber. After the storm ceased, five horses were taken from beneath the ruins, three of which were not seriously hard one of the other two were not seriously hurt; one of the other two is lost. A darky who was sleeping in the stable-loft made his escape after the stable was blown to the ground, unhurt. The loss of hacks, buggies, stables and damages to stock, etc., will amount to at least one thou-The postoffice was blown from its pillars, and letters, etc., scattered all over the room. The law office of M'Chesney & Lively was lifted from its foundation and set down several feet from its former position in a kind of a rough manner. The inmates say that it is useless to remark that times were somewhat exciting. Considerable damage was done to heir library and other things. church is one mass of ruins, and the Metho-dist church is rendered entirely useless. The welling house of Mr. William Wilson was aken away and scattered for nearly one hunired yards from where it stood. Mr. Wilson and family happened not be at home, and no one was hurt. A dwelling house belonging to J. E. Rose, one of our enterprising merchants, was also demolished. The dry goods store of A. B. Downing was creaned considerably and the front blown out and damaged several hundred dellars. The dwelling houses of Deputy-Sher ff Cleveland and County-Clerk W. A. Williams received considerable damage, being partly blown away. The flour-ing-mill of H. Fuller was badly damaged, but the less cannot be correctly estimated yet, though it is great. Nearly every house n town was damaged more or less; many being blown from their pillars and racked, and others entirely dostroyed. While much damage has been der would seem that the protection of the eye of God was thrown around His earthly creatures, for out of several houses that were completely runned not one had an occupant during the storm. As soon as the storm was over every one who could go was out for the relief of any who might have been suffering, but the only bodily sufferers your correspondent found were the horses at the ivery stable. No person received any serious njury in town. One or two received slight juries, but all seem to be thankful that ings were no worse. It seems that our little city has much endure, but the hope and aspirations of our people bear them up, and will yet enable them to build up a large and prosperous town, and overcome all opposition brought to bear against them.
